Excerpt: .O brethren, drink deep into the well-spring of life! Be clad with zeal as with a cloak. Study every means to promote the enterprise of the world's salvation in the hearts of your teachers. Let your school libraries be stored with all the varied existing missionary literature in our language. Endeavor to promote, to the uttermost, the study of it among the teachers and senior scholars. Devise suitable methods of bringing the main facts to bear upon the whole school. I shall endeavor, in a subsequent letter, to suggest the best plans of effecting this; and, in the mean time, I invite your attention to the following facts, illustrative of the beneficial tendency of the gospel of Christ. Of all the South Sea characters sketched by Mr. Williams, few are more interesting than that of the spiritual beggar Buteve. One hardly knows whether more...
