RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 180 pages. Original publisher: Washington : U. S. G. P. O. : For sale by the Supt. of Docs. , U. S. G. P. O. , 2004. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)55125876 Subject: Indians of North America -- Claims. Excerpt: . . . 11 alignment with what you have said and the conclusions you have reached. I think really it is impossible to defend the performance thus far of the corps with respect to management of the river. We understand they are under all kinds of cross-pressures. There are downstream States that have a different take on this. But look, I really do think this is fundamental. We go to the question I asked to begin with with respect to the Winters decision, the so-called Winters Doctrine, going back to a Supreme Court de-cision in 1908. I think that said very, very clearly that water rights are reserved along with rights to the land. Then, if I could follow up with Mr. Dunlop and General Grisoli, in the Arizona v. California decision, what is your understanding of what it said on the question of Indian water rights This is some 60 years after the Winters decision. UNLOP Mr. D. Mr. Chairman, I have consulted with my colleagues here at the table and none of us are familiar with that case. I have also consulted with Martin Cohen who is from the Office of General Counsel at the Corps of Engineers, the litigation branch, and he advises that this is a complicated case that we would ask that we could provide some written response to you, to give you an analysis of our understanding about that for the record. In the meantime, though, we would be very interested in being informed...
